BOND ISSUE FOR A CITY PARK URGED AT MEETING

LOCATION TWO BLOCKS EAST OF MAIN IS PROPOSED.

ESTIMATED AT $60,000

Committee Reports to Representatives of Women's Clubs and Other Civic Bodies.

A park for Maryville, located near the business section, was discussed at a meeting of representatives from the various women's clubs and other civic bodies at the Elks club house at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

It was estimated by the proponents of the plan that a bond issue of $60,000 would be sufficient to buy the tract of land under discussion for a park, to improve it and to build a pavilion which could be use for housing fairs and exhibits and so changed as to be used as an auditorium. Playground equipment for the children would be provided. Plans for landscaping the tract will be prepared.

The location under discussion for the park begins at Vine street at the alley north of Fourth street (the old bus barn site) and extends three blocks east to Davis street, following the alley, then north two and a half blocks to Seventh street, then west one block to Saunders street, south to Sixth street, a block west to Short street, and a half block south on Short street to the alley line, and then two blocks west, following the alley, to Vine street.

There are twenty-five acres in the tract. It is only two blocks from the main business section of the city.

There are only twelve houses in the tract and the greater part of it is open space and not in use. The entire tract, it was said, can be purchased at a very reasonable price and is the only location close to the business section of the town which is within reach and at the same time desirable.

The question of a city park for Maryville has been under discussion for several years. Last fall committees selected by several organizations began work to find a location not far from the business district at the same time keeping in mind that the expenditures to be involved should be within reason.

The proposition provides calling a special election to vote on a bond issue for this purpose. A two-thirds majority will be necessary.

From Kansas City to Maryville, 22 Hours

Ray Cook And Party Spend Night At Farmhouse.—Car Pulled Out Of Mud Twice.

Ray Cook accompanied by his mother, Mrs. J. F. Cook, and Miss Leona Willard, returned home yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock from Kansas City after having been on the road since 5 o'clock the preceding day and meeting with many difficulties along the road from Savannah to Bolckow.

The party first encountered trouble after leaving the highway near the church south of Rosendale, the detour being necessary because the highway was not passable at the river bridge, west of Rosendale. On this detour, which goes through Wyeth, a truck was stuck in a mud hole, and Mr. Cook decided not to attempt to go through that night and lodgings were obtainaed at a farm house nearby. The next morning, the truck was still in the mud hole. Mr. Cook also got stuck in the hole and it was necessary to employ six horses to pull his car out. He had more trouble between Rosendale and Bolckow, when his care "dropped out of sight" in another mud hole. This time, after using horses unsuccessfully, he had to get a tractor to pull him out. At two places, one near Wyeth and the other north of Rosendale, water came up as high as the running board of the car, he said.

Mr. Cook said there were many cars in trouble along the road.

"I'm cured," he declared. "From now on, I stay home until that road is paved.

Temperature Lacks 5 Degrees of Freezing

Sleet and Snow Fall This Morning.—River Subsides and Train Service Is Near Normal.

Although a predicted drop in temperature arrived last night, the official thermometer of J. R. Brink, Maryville weather observer, lacked five degrees of reaching the freezing mark, he announced this morning. The lowest temperature recorded during the night was 37.

There were distinct traces of snow and sleet this morning, changing later into rain.

The 102 river had fallen to the 12½ foot stage here at noon and was subsiding further.

Train service here was little affected by high water, according to both Burlington and Wabash officials. Wabash train No. 11 was about thirty minutes late this morning. The noon Burlington also was a half hour late, but this was said to be due to delay in loading a horse in the express car.

TO LIQUIDATE PARNELL BANK

F. H. BARRETT IS NAMED DEPUTY COMMISSIONER.

TO STAY AT HOPKINS

Appointee To Continue In Charge Of Defunct Bank There Also.—Salary $100 A Month.

F. H. Barrett, who is in charge of the defunct Bank of Hopkins, Hopkins, has been appointed by L. Cantley, state finance commission[illegible] special deputy commissioner to liquidate the Bank of Parnell, at Parnell, which was closed April 8.

Mr. Barrett said this morning that he would take over the affairs of the bank the latter part of this week, probably Friday. He said he had not received his commission but had been notified to begin his work at Parnell by R. E. Shelby, state bank examiner, who took charge of the bank when it was closed.

Mr. Barrett, who formerly lived at Skidmore, will divide his time between the two defunct institutions, but will continue his residence at Hopkins, he said. Whether he would name assistants to help him with both of the banks was doubtful, as he thought he could take care of liquidation personally.

It was announced in this morning's Kansas City Times that Mr. Barrett would receive a salary of $100 a month for his work in the Parnell Bank.

"Hospitality" was the theme of discussion at the weekly meeting of the beginning group of Girl Reserves of the High School. Eleanor Stanfield read from Psalm 121 as scripture, followed by talks on the subject of being "sociable."

The talks:

"Spirit of Hospitality," by Gwendolyn Jantz; "Place For Hospitality", by Shirley Bennett; "Influence of Hospitality," by Isabelle Dewar; benediction, society.

Those who directed the puppets were: Mabel Mackey, Ruby Norris, Thelma Jackson, Hazel Carr, Helen Cottier, Romona Biggs, and Ethel Bostwick. The prologue was read by Ruby Goodwin.

1267 PERSONS ENTERED NOW

59 HIGH SCHOOLS LISTED IN SPRING CONTESTS.

WILL BE MORE YET

Several Blanks Sent Back and Not Counted.—Can't Work On Track.—Few More Rooms Needed.

At least twelve hundred and sixty-seven persons will represent fifty-nine high schools of Northwest Missouri in the district contests which will be sponsored by the State Teachers College April 28-30. This includes 128 students and seventeen teachers from the Maryville High School.

Indications are that there will be as many as 150 more contestants before the books are finally closed. A number of entries have had to be returned because they were imperfectly filled out or because some important part of the entry was missing. Among these is one from Harmony High School, near Ravenwood, which is sending its entire enrollment. St. Joseph high schools have had their entry blanks returned to them because they were not properly filled out.

This morning's mail brought about ten entries, all of which bore a postmark of Monday, the last day on which entries could be sent. It is possible that other entries may have been delayed in the mails, and for this reason it is believed that the enrollment this year will be in the neighborhood of 1400, which would be a record. Already there are more entries than last year, when the 1200 mark was barely shaded. Fifty-eight schools enrolled last year.

None of the entry blanks which have been returned are counted in the figures given out today.

A serious problem is confronting the management of the contests. For two weeks workmen have been waiting to get to work on the track back of the College building. Continued rains have left the oval in bad condition, and now it is going to be necessary to work overtime to get it in shape. H. Frank Lawrence, director of athletics at the College, hopes to be able to get his men to work by tomorrow, but it is doubtful.

Mrs. A. R. Perrin, chairman of the housing committee for the contests, issued a call for more rooms today. The people of Maryville have been kind in throwing open their homes for the high school visitors, and beds have been provided for all but about 100 of the visitors. Therefore Mrs. Perrin is making a final appeal for rooms. Persons willing to rent rooms at 50 cents a person a night are asked to notify the Maryville Chamber of Commerce.

William H. McDougal Dies at Family Home

Tuberculosis Is Fatal To Son Of Judge And Mrs. R. L. McDougal.—Funeral Not Arranged.

William H. McDougal, 22-year-old son of Judge and Mrs. R. L. McDougal, died at the family home, 822 East First street, at 3:30 o'clock this morning. Mr. McDougal had been ill since August 21 last. The cause of his death was tuberculosis.

No arrangements for the funeral have been made, pending the arrival of John McDougal of Decatur, Ga., a brother, who is expected to arrive here tonight. The family requests that flowers be omitted.

Mr. McDougal was born on January 27, 1905, in Maryville. He had been working for a printing company in Chicago for some time. Besides his parents, he is survived by another brother, Frank McDougal of Maryville.

THESE 2 MEN NOW CAN TALK "IN PRIVATE"

Conference Rooms Are Built on to Offices of Sheriff Campbell and Supt. Somerville.

The sheriff and county superintendent of schools now can go "into conference" all they wish and will not be disturbed, especially by reporters, they say.

Whether or not L. B. Campbell and L. G. Somerville thought that W. R. Tilson, circuit clerk, should be the only officer in the courthouse to get the county court to make improvements has not been fully decided.

But it is known to those who have occasion to pass down the corridor of the courthouse that workmen, including carpenters and plasterers, have been at work of late under orders of the county court, to enlarge the two officers for consultation rooms.

Unused space, under and around the stairways leading to the circuit court room at each end of the building, has been utilized for the two conference rooms and as soon as the plastering dries the finishing touches will be put on.

WHITE QUITS STATE BOARD

ELEEMOSYNARY INSTITUTIONS IN POLITICS, HE CHARGES.

A MEMBER 28 YEARS

Resignation of Mexico Democrat Follows Removal of State Health Supervisor.

Mexico, Mo., April 20.—Explaining that he objected to the resumption of the political spoils system in the management of the six eleemosynary institutions, housing more than 7,000 insane, epileptic and tubercular patients, Col. R. N. White, for twenty-eight years a member of the state eleemosynary board, submitted his resignation to Governor Sam Baker today.

Colonel White's resignation followed quickly the board's action in removing Dr. George A. Johns, state health supervisor, and other officers, to provide berths for alleged political favorites.

In his letter of resignation, handed to the governor today, Colonel White said:

"I am asking you to kindly accept my resignation as a member of the satte eleemosynary board, the same to take effect immediateiy. I am forced to the opinion that the present board is not carrying out the spirit and intent of the non-partisan eleemosynary law, which was intended to take the six institutions under its control out of politics for the good of the patients.

"Not being in harmony with the other members of the board and policies of major importance as I see them, I deem it my duty to the governor, the state and myself to resign."

THE JUDGE TO RULE ON CASE

JURY IS DISCHARGED IN McINTYRE CONTROVERSY.

WILL CASE TOMORROW

Judge John M. Dawson will decide the case brought by Lawson McIntyre, a farmer living between Elmo and Burlington Junction, against the Live Stock Shipping Association of Burlington Junction, an action involving "money had and received."

Judge Dawson made an announcement to this effect in circuit court this morning, after counsel for both sides agreed that there was a question of law and none of fact to be determined, and the jury, which was impaneled yesterday afternoon, was discharged.

McIntyre brought suit against the Shipping Association for the recovery of $1,297.57. The Association had sold fifty-eight hogs for him on the St. Joseph market, issued a check for this amount payable at the Northwestern Bank of Burlington Junction, and by the time McIntyre had deposited the check at his bank in Elmo and the check had made the route through the clearing house, the Northwestern Bank was closed and has not been opened since.

Attorneys for both sides discussed the case before the court this morning in the absence of the jury, citing cases in support of their contentions. A case in which the defunct Holland Bank of Springfield was involved, was mentioned by the defense counsel.

The question for the court to decide is whether McIntyre used due diligence in presenting the check for payment after it was received by him. Judge Dawson said the case was an unusual one in this circuit and that he would give his opinion before the end of the April term.

The jury was excused until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning when the case to set aside a will, brought by Ethel Comer Flowers against John W. Woods, and others, has been scheduled for trial.

The damage suit of Josephine Cooper against R. L. Wohlford, set for trial today, was continued by agreement, when William Sawyers, counsel for the defense, announced to the court that Charles F. McCaffrey, counsel for the plaintiff, had been suffering with an attack of appendicitis for two days and would be unable to try the case. It was said the attorney might be required to undergo an operation.

Ellis G. Cook, the other member of the law firm of McCaffrey & Cook, is at Rochester, Minn., taking treatment.

As the firm of McCaffrey and Cook was representing the defendants in the note suit of George W. Aley against W. A. Palmer and J. N. Palmer, this case was continued, and the replevin suit of C. E. Barnett against James Howard was continued on a demurrer.

By agreement the plaintiff was awarded judgment of $34.15 in the damage suit of W. F. Hartman against Russell Bagby. The contract suit of Albert Butherus against the American Alliance Insurance Company of New York was settled and dismissed.

Judge Dawson signed an order in a liquidation case of the Bank of Hopkins, wherein F. H. Barrett, special deputy commissioner, is one of the petitioners, authorizing the sale of eighty acres of land for $6,000.

The land was described as the north half of the southwest quarter of section nine, township sixty-six, range thirty-four, situated two and a half miles east and a half mile south of Hopkins. The order stated that the bank would realize $341.86, after the first mortgage, interest and expenses were paid out of the sale.

REFORM TICKET WINS

Three Members Of Congregation Elected To City Commission Yesterday.—Polls Orderly.

Marion, Ill., April 20.—The First Baptist Church was bombed here today, following election of three of its members to the Marion city commission.

Authorities believed the attempt to destroy the church marked a new mode of vengeance in a stormy career of "bloody Williamson," the county of which this is the seat.

The three elected commissioners campaigned on reform platforms in a hard fight for the offices. They denounced gambling, bootlegging and lawlessness.

There were no disorders at the polls yesterday and Marion was congratulating itself on a peaceful election when a bomb wrecked the main entrance of the church, with a blast that could be heard all over the city.

The front door and the decorated hallway just inside were splintered. Damage was estimated at approximately $1,000 The church is one of the largest in Marion.

No trace of the vandals had been found up to noon today.

VICTIMS FLEE FROM FLOODS

THOUSANDS MOVE OUT BEFORE ARKANSAS TORRENT.

DEATHS ARE FEARED

Clarendon, Ark., Under Water and Several May Be Dead.—Relief Work Continues.

Memphis, April 20—Thousands of families were moving from towns and farms in the St. Francis basin of eastern Arkansas today as torrents raged south from a new break in the river levee, seven miles above New Madrid, Mo.

At the same time, other points in the levee were weakening and complete inundation of the valley appeared certain. All levees protecting the basin from the Mississippi have broken as a result of the flood.

New Madrid was under five feet of water, which rose rapidly. Mayor J. S. Hunter, one of the fifty persons left in the city, normally inhabited by 2,000, slept in the attic of his home last night.

Drownings Reported.

Clarendon, Ark., was under four feet of water and several persons were believed to have drowned there when the White river levee broke. A telephone operator stuck to her post in spite of broken wires and raging waters outside, reported seeing several persons clinging to a bed mattress floating in the swirling torrent.

Armed with machine guns and orders to "shoot to kill," a troop of 150 Arkansas national guardsmen are protecting the levee at Reelfoot lake, against further attempts to dynamite the levee at that point. Several thousand workmen are striving to prevent further encroachment by the water.

Thousands Leave Homes.

St. Louis, April 20.—The army of destitute flood refugees in the Mississippi valley, already between 25,000 and 30,000, was constantly increasing today, and the American Red Cross was directing relief work in seven states from its Midwest branch here.

"The situation is hourly becoming more acute," said William M. Baxter, in charge of the work of the Midwest branch.

"The break yesterday at New Madrid, Mo., which left hundreds homeless is the latest of a series of disasters which together form a catastrope of major proportions."

The problem of feeding refugees was serious, he said. Concentration of the homeless in southeastern Missouri has taxed relief facilities to the utmost. Hundreds from East Cape Girardeau, Ill., and surrounding territory were crossing to the Missouri side for safety.

Churches And Schools Used.

Refugees were being housed in vacant buildings, churches, schools and tents provided by the army. Some 4,000 of these tents have been shipped into the afflicted territory.

Baxter reported the local situation today as follows:

Caruthersville, Mo.—A committee was distributing clothing, shelter, food and medical attention. Anticipating the disaster, the local chapter was stocked with necessary supplies.

Mississippi County, Mo.—Food and other supplies were needed. Refugees were moving in from East Prairie and Sikeston and trucks were sent for New Madrid families.

Cape Girardeau, Mo.—The Red Cross was feeding between 300 and 500 refugees. Cots and blankets were distributed and all were given needed shelter.

More Tents Needed.

Blytheville, Ark.—There was no need for food, but other supplies were requested by the local Red Cross. Tents were needed throughout Cross county.

St. Francis, county, Ark.—The refugee problem was most serious here. The population has almost doubled and supplies are badly needed.

Lee county, Ark.—All refugees were reported well cared for.

Helena, Ark.—The situation is well in hand.

Pine Bluff, Ark.—150 families were left homeless by two levee breaks. The local Red Cross is caring for them.

Mrs. Amy Garrett, William Lemon, Howard Bancroft, Rollie Bancroft and Howard Garrett of Clearmont were Maryville visitors today. Mrs. Garrett and Mr. Lemon remained for a visit with the former's mother, Mrs. J. H. Lemon, who is ill.

LIGHTED HIGHWAYS.

A bill before the Ohio legislature provides for the lighting of rural highways by the state under much the same plan as new roads are built and kept in repair. Farmers of the state are expressing themselves as strongly in favor of this bill. The reason is not far to seek. If the bill becomes a law it will mean not only much-needed lighting along the busiest inter-city routes, but it will also bring electricity, with all the conveniences it makes possible, right to the farmer's door.

The congestion of traffic and the increased number of accidents and hold-ups along state highways have created the demand for this lighting system. The time when practically all traveling was done along the roads in daylight has passed. The highways now are used for both passenger and freight traffic 24 hours a day.

Highway lighting has already been undertaken on a wide scale in some states. General interest in it is likely to develop rapidly from now on.

The war is on again, with 5,150,000 hunters licensed in the United States, and the casualty lists will soon be coming in.

Fewer children learn to play instruments in this age of mechanical music. That may be unfortunate for the children, but it's better for the music.

The bond market is very favorable just now and perhaps more favorable than they will be a year from now. The market fluctuates and of course the future cannot be forseen. In 1919 Pettis County voted a bond issue of $500,000 with which to hard surface roads in that county. The county court sold the second installment of $100,000 a few days ago at par and $1,000 premium. The bonds are to bear four and a half per cent.

SMALL TOWN NEWSPAPERS

New York Times

Journalism Week, State Newspaper Shows and individual exhibits by universities and newspapers have recently brought the small community newspaper into prominence. Its possibilities as a service to its public and as a profitable enterprise for its owner are being recognized. Conditions in rural districts have changed so much in the last ten or fifteen years that the problem now presented to the country paper bears more relation to that of the big daily than to its own former situation. Motor cars, radio, movies, good roads and a wider, freer acquaintance in farm and village population have caused the greater part of the change. Introduction of modern equipment for getting out the paper is responsible for the rest.

A bulletin from the University of Missouri reports the statements of many editors from all parts of the country concerning their methods and success in meeting altered conditions. Some of them complain that business was much better in the good old days. But of the scores who contributed to the survey, most felt that their field was never so rich in opportunity.

Half of Boys in College are Wasting Time, Educator Says

New York, April 20.—Fully 50 per cent of the American boys who will go to college next fall would be better off if they changed their plans and went directly into business, declares President William H. P. Faunce of Brown University, in an interview published by the American Magazine today.

From a study of statistics covering nearly half a century, Dr. Faunce finds that many boys who go to college are "failures," in the sense that they fail to graduate. "Moreover," he explains, "these figures do not include the uncounted thousands who, though they have been graduated, have simply wasted four precious years, and received no benefit commensurate with the time and money spent. There is no other career, for which men are so definitely prepared, in which there is such an appalling proportion of failures."

The question every parent should ask himself, according to Dr. Faunce, is this: "Is college worth four years out of my boy's life?"

Summing up his 28 years' experience as head of a great Eastern university, Dr. Faunce says: "The common belief that college training is suited to every boy and that every boy is suited to college, is one of the great tragedies of American life today. Certainly half of the boys whom well-meaning parents send to college ought not to go.

"None of us can get too much education. But it should be the kind of education best fitted to us as individuals. We are making the mistake of assuming that education can be obtained only in colleges, and that a college diploma is good for everybody.

"The standardized bit of advice relative to boys in America has become, 'Send him to college if you can afford it.' A great tragedy is the result.

"One of the oldest colleges in the United States shows in its reports that only 33 percent of the students enrolled have been graduated with their class. The others have gone from college disappointed, disillusioned, some of them embittered, with shattered confidence at an age when self-confidence should be highest.

"Students and parents should devote at least as much time to investigating what the college has to offer before they decide to buy, as the average man does to investigating the suitability of a house or an automobile. Students come to college without the slightest conception of what it is all about. Many of them are as much at a loss as the man who went into a jewelry store to buy a pipe wrench."

To Draft Rules for Operation of Busses

Public Service Commission Will Hold Series of Hearings on Regulations.

Jefferson City, April 20.—Preparations to put into effect State regulation of all motor bus lines operating in Missouri are being made by the State Public Service Commission and a set of rules and regulations for motor bus operation will be adopted by the commission before the bus law, passed by the 1927 Legislature, becomes effective July 3.

The commission first will draft a tentative set of rules and regulations which will be considered in a series of hearings to be held here for the bus companies, before the law becomes effective. The final set of regulations will be adopted following these hearings and promulgated before July 3.

Hearings on issuance of certificates of conveniences and public necessity to the companies, which are equivalent to franchises and on rates, service schedules, routes and equipment, will be held after the law goes into effect. No statistics have been obtained by the commission so far on the number of bus lines operating in the State.

Rights Of Cities.

One section of the bus law provides that it shall not apply to full regulation of motor vehicles operated in a city, forming a part of a transportation system within that city, but another provision of the same section defines all bus companies as common carriers and requires them to obtain a certificate of convenience and public necessity from the commission before they can operate.

When bus lines operating or planning to operate in a city make application to the commission for a certificate, they must show that they first have received a franchise or permit from the city affected.

Provisions of Law.

Among other provisions of the law are:

Full power for the commission to license, supervise and regulate every motor carrier in the State, and to fix rates, fares and classifications, to regulate the system of accounting, schedules, service and method of operating; to require filing of annual reports; to prescribe rules and regulations governing such carriers; to require the companies to furnish bonds or carry liability insurance to protect passengers and property; for fixing the annual licenses for motor busses, ranging from $40 for a bus carrying seven passengers or less, up to $230 for busses carrying more than 24 passengers; retaining for municipalities the right to control the use of its streets by busses and the right to regulate operation of busses within the limits of the municipalities; giving the commission discretionary power to issue a certificate of convenience and public necessity to a bus line but with a proviso that any bus line in operation Dec. 1, 1926, shall be presumed to be entitled to a certificate; authorizing the commission to cancel a certificate for failure of the company to render adequate service and prohibiting bus lines, once licensed, from abandoning service without authority from the commission after a hearing.

One section of the law gives the commission the same powers and jurisdiction over motor busses that it exercises over other common carriers under the public service commission law.

Mudguard Is Latest Thing for Flappers

New Contrivance Protects Rear of Stocking From Mud While Not Obstructing View in Front.

By HEDDA HOYT.

(United Press Fashion Editor.)

New York, April 19.—Regard the mudguard, the half-sister of the galosh which is being sponsored by chorus girls on Broadway! ('Splash guards') as they are called, look, from the rear, like galoshes but from the front they are minus qualities since the shoe and stocking are entirely exposed. Little straps extend from the rear across the instep holding the high galosh-like cuff up in back.

When wearing a "splash guard" the leg viewed from the front looks like a neck adorned with a high up-standing rear collar. These protectors are made of a rubberized material resembling galosh cloth. They slip over the shoe without covering the heel. For the small price of one dollar one can provide ones self with these flashy heel mudguards which come in several light shades as well as black. Who is to hope, however, that taxi drivers will be so discreet as to splash the rear of the leg only?

As Spring advances we see fewer gunmetal stockings and more of the light tannish nude shades. Rosey tan tones are not as popular as the tan that is of faint yellowish cast or sunburnt tones. For evening wear pale flesh tones in the sheerest of silk, clocked in inconspicuous clock-design are favored.

Quite a few women are wearing light tan stockings with a darker brown square-topped heel. These, of course, are worn with brown shoes harmonizing with the heels. The darker heel tends to slenderize the appearance of the ankle.

One of the newest stockings has the monogram carried out in open-work design just below the knee. The anklet stocking is another Spring oddity. Here, a band contrasting color is woven into the stocking at the ankle to give an anklet effect. Shades of gray with black anklet stripes are those most popular. In fact, we have not seen these stockings in the lighter tan shades.

Lounge Lizards Not Popular as Husbands

Kansas City Girls Want Men With Good Salaries.—Most Oppose Liquor and Tobacco.

Kansas City, Mo., April 19.—The Rev. R. C. Harding, Kansas City minister, has compiled a list of the desirable and undesirable characteristics that young men and young women look for when considering matrimony.

As a result of the circulation of a questionnaire which was designed to reveal the tastes of modern youths of marriageable age, Rev. Harding has concluded that lounge lizards and gum and rag chewers lead the list of unwanted.

A number of young men and young women who belong to his church responded to most of the questions asked and made no mental reservations on queries related to family finance, single standards, etc.

One girl fixed the nest egg required for matrimony at $3,000; another placed it at $5,000, still another demanded an automobile other than a Ford.

All of the young women who answered the questionnaire demanded a husband who made a good salary, and most of them were against liquor and tobacco.

Other specifications for the model husband included sense of humor, chivalry, musical talent, religion and modesty.

"Tea hounds" are unwanted, principally because the model husband must be able to earn a sizeable income, according to the answers.

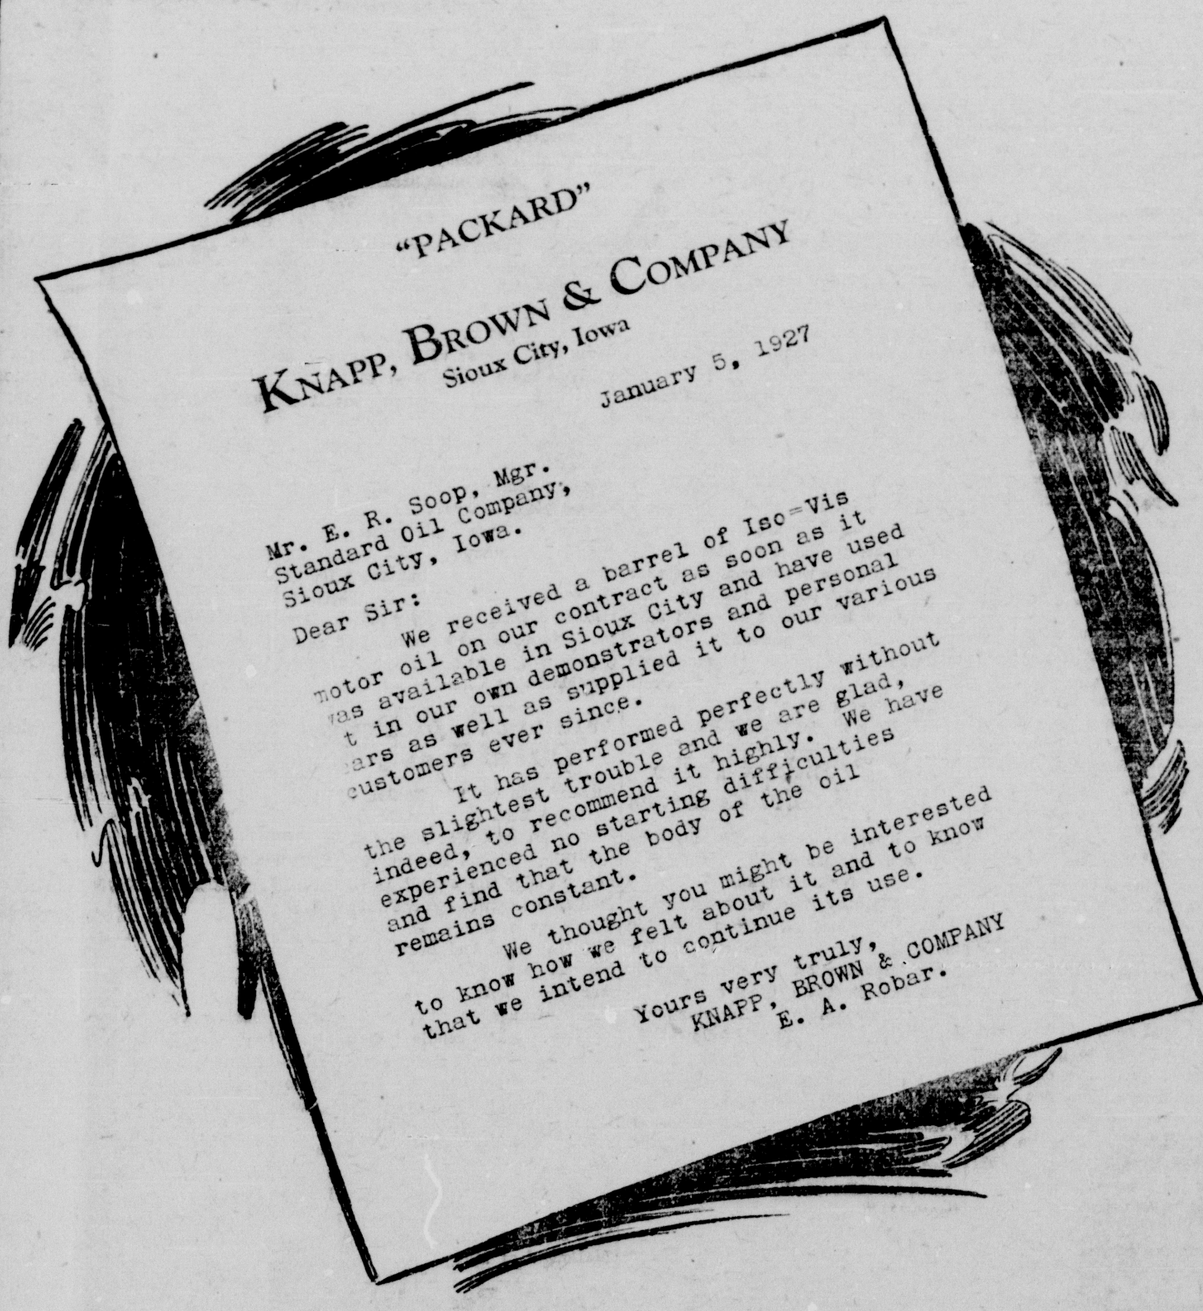
The Experience of Knapp, Brown & Company with

ISO=VIS

The motoring world is enthusiastic about this new motor oil. Every day letters of praise come in from people who have used it and are amazed at the remarkable results it gives. A typical letter is reproduced below:



"PACKARD"

KNAPP, BROWN & COMPANY
Sioux City, Iowa

January 5, 1927

Mr. E. R. Soop, Mgr.
Standard Oil Company,
Sioux City, Iowa.

Dear Sir:

We received a barrel of Iso-Vis motor oil on our contract as soon as it was available in Sioux City and have used it in our own demonstrators and personal cars as well as supplied it to our various customers ever since.

It has performed perfectly without the slightest trouble and we are glad, indeed, to recommend it highly. We have experienced no starting difficulties and find that the body of the oil remains constant.

We thought you might be interested to know how we felt about it and to know that we intend to continue its use.

Yours very truly,
KNAPP, BROWN & COMPANY
E. A. Robar.

Iso-Vis has "performed perfectly" for thousands of motorists who appreciate the constant viscosity—constant efficiency—fewer repair bills—greater pleasure—that it means. Why not try it yourself? With the coming of milder weather we recommend Iso-Vis—30c per quart—a little more per quart—less per mile. Consult Chart for Correct Grade for Summer.

Iso-Vis will enable your car to run better and smoother.

At any Standard Oil Service Station and at licensed garages.

Menus for the Family

By SISTER MARY

BREAKFAST—Orange juice, cereal, ham omelet with creamed spinach, graham and raisin muffins, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON — Cream of tomato soup, croutons, open toasted cheese sandwich, green onions, fig cookies, milk, tea.

DINNER—Veal birds, creamed potatoes, fresh asparagus on toast, cucumber and pineapple salad, rye rolls, chocolate souffle, milk, coffee.

Veal birds are not a particularly hearty meal course so a nourishing dessert is planned.

When asparagus is served on hot toast none of the delicious juice is lost. It always seems a shame to leave all the good melted butter in the vegetable dish which inevitably happens if toast is not used.

The toast also keeps the vegetable hot.

Open Toasted Cheese Sandwich

Four slices of bread, ¾ cup grated cheese, ¼ teaspoon paprika, 1 teaspoon Worchestershire sauce, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 eggs, 8 slices bacon.

Cut bread about ¾ of an inch thick. Beat eggs slightly and add cheese, salt, paprika and Worchestershire sauce. Mix well and pile generously on slices of bread. Put 2 slices of very thin bacon on top of each slice. Put into a hot oven for fifteen minutes to brown and crisp bacon and cook eggs and cheese. The bread will toast at the same time. Serve as soon as done.

"John, do you know you have a very clever wife"

IN BUYING a dress, there are usually a number of garments that might do. But the clever wife isn't satisfied with just any dress. She compares one dress with another until she finds exactly what she wants.

By comparison she is able to choose the dress that suits her best and meets the approval of her husband. The same holds true in buying coffee.

We could use many fine words to describe Folger's Coffee. How appetizing its rare, fragrant aroma. How refreshing and satisfying its rich, distinctive flavor. How economical its high quality.

Instead, we ask you to compare Folger's Coffee with the brand you are now using by making the Folger Coffee Test. It is the logical, easy way to shop for coffee.

The Folger Coffee Test: Drink Folger's Coffee tomorrow morning; the next morning drink the coffee you have been using; the third morning drink Folger's again. You will decidedly favor one brand or the other. The Best Coffee Wins. That's fair, isn't it?

The picture shown was "Stranded in Paris," featuring Bebe Daniels. Miss Laura B. Hawkins and Miss Mabel Messick directed the play, which had a cast of nine characters.

The picture and play will be repeated tonight. On acount of the length of the picture only one show was given last night.

Second Bethany Bank Closed Last Night

Bethany Savings, With $364,264 Resources, Founded Same Year As Bank Which Failed Monday.

Bethany, April 20.—The Bethany Savings Bank, with total resources of $364,264.12, has been closed by order of the board of directors.

The closing order was posted between 11 p. m. and midnight last night.

The institution was organized in 1872, the same year that the Harrison County Bank, which closed Monday, was founded.

The closing of the Bethany bank, closely related to the Harrison County Bank through its board of directors, was believed to have been a precautionary measure. The bank was a county depository. F. M. Frisby was president and H. L. Collins cashier.

The last statement of the bank, made November 22, 1926, showed total resources of $364,264.12. The total loans was $292,110.01. Of that amount $86,050 was in real estate loans. The capital stock was $66,000. Surplus was $25,000 and undivided profits $788.20.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Hammond and sons and Roy Batson, Parnell; and Sam Burns, Barnard, were Maryville visitors today.

SUPPLY GONE, PATIENT ASKS MORE BLOOD

Texan, After 45 Transfusions, Exhausts Offerings Of Friends.—At Critical Point of Illness.

Dallas, April 20.—Having exhausted the superfluous blood supply of his relatives, friends and neighbors with blood transfusions, Travis B. Smythe, 26, today appealed for contributions of life fluid from anyone.

Since last October, Smythe, who is suffering with a disease of the digestive system, has had forty-five blood transfusions.

"The critical point of his illness has been reached," said Dr. S. F. Sweeney, his physician, "and whether or not Smythe recovers depends upon the effect of the next few blood transfusions."

Although often in intense pain, Smythe is nearly always in an optimistic mood, hospital attaches said. He declared he did not have an ambition to break or even equal the world record for blood transfusions, which, according to Dr. Sweeney, is something over 100.

A City With One Dry Spot

U. S. Once Teacher of Art of Wine Making

Growing Of Grapes And Fermentation Of Their Juice Urged In Agriculture Bulletin Of 1860.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

Washington, April 20.—Civilization seems to have moved rather rapidly.

Back in 1860 the Department of Agriculture was a small branch of the patent office, spending about $50,000 a year. Today the publications of the department alone spends more than $1,600,000, and the whole department somewhere around $175,000,000.

The report of the commissioner of patents on agriculture for 1860 had no apparent foresight of such progress as this, but it did congratulate the whole of North America.

Turning To Wine.

"It may be regarded as a highly interesting and gratifying evidence of the progress of civilization on this continent that general attention is turned toward the cultivation of the grape and the manufacture of wine," said one section of the report, which devoted nearly 100 small-typed pages to such cultivation and manufacture.

The dozen or less members of the personnel of the agriculture bureau of those days had little suspicion of how differently civilization would be measured in this generation.

"There seems to be," remarked the inspired writer, after pointing to evidences of how wine had increased in popularity, "a general recognition of the fact that in the scramble for wealth and in the greed for wide possessions, as well as in the inherent difficulties of our situation—thrown as we have been upon a new continent—we have too long neglected one of the most ancient and useful arts of life; an art which in all ages has been the fruitful source of comfort and luxury, of health and happiness, to the masses of mankind. The neglect of this important and beautiful department of agriculture is the more remarkable since our country embraces every degree of latitude and every variety of climate and soil in which the grape is known to flourish."

A Gallon For 25 Cents.

Whereupon the good book went on to paint a glorious future for husbandry in these United States. At 25 cents a gallon, for which wine could be produced, it would become one of our cheapest articles of food. America, and not France, would soon become the world's great wine country.

"We," the agriculturalist went on, "who only consume wine as it is sold at the rate of one or two dollars the bottle, can scarcely believe that in Europe it is a cheap article of food in which the common people indulge daily. . . . .

"It is difficult to overrate the importance of this subject to the industrial, the social and the moral interests of society.

"If we have reference to the health, the comfort and the sobriety of the people, the importance of grape and wine culture becomes still more striking. Its introduction will have the most beneficent effect upon the morals of the country."

Tracing the ancient art of fermenting the juice in Armenia, the report said of the Armenians: "When their spirits were greatly stimulated by imbibing the fragrant nectar, their religious enthusiasm broke forth in incessant prayers to the Virgin."

A Poor Prophet.

The writer submitted an enormous amount of information about the virtues and history of wine. He had everything but the gift of propheey.

"Jog On, Jehosophat"

Road gets rougher every mile;
(Cluck) Jog on, Jehosophat, an' show some style.
Mule's gone lame, an' the hens won't lay;
Corn's way down, an' wheat don't pay;
Hogs no better, steers too cheap,
Cows quit milking, meat won't keep.
Oats all heated, spuds all froze;
Fruit crop's busted, wind still blows;
Sheep seem puny, and I'll be durned.
Rye field's flooded and the haystack burned.
Looks some gloomy, I'll admit—
(Cluck) Jog on, Jehosophat, we ain't down yit.
Wheels all wobble; axle's bent;
Dashboard's broken, top all rent;
One shaft splintered; t'other sags;
Seat's all busted; end gate drags;
May hang together—b'lieve it will;
Careful drivin'll make it still;
Roads some better, not so rough—
Trot! Gosh ding ye! That's the stuff!
Old trap's moving right good speed—

Road's smoothed out 'till it don't seem true.

HARMONY

J. E. Anderson and family were trading in Maryville last Saturday.

The fine weather and hard roads of last Sunday brought out two good congregations for the services both morning and evening. Mrs. Cunningham preached in the morning a sermon appropriate to the Easter thought, from the phrases, "A dead man, a risen Savior, an ascended Lord." The attendance in the Sunday School was the largest for some months and there were two accessions to the church at the morning hour. The evening hour was given over to the Easter program by the Sunday School. The committee having the program in charge had labored at a disadvantage on account of the rain and muddy roads, preventing rehearsals, but the program was well rendered. Offerings for the church work were taken at both the morning and evening services.

J. S. Casteel and wife of Ravenwood were attendants at the Sunday morning service.

The family of Ned Garrett and Rev. and Mrs. E. B. Cunningham were Sunday dinner guests at the B. K. Lewis home.

B. S. Cox attended the service of the Knights Templars Lodge at Maryville last Sunday morning.

Final examinations in the Eighth grade were held last week at the High School building. The following from Ward 1 made good grades and will be promoted to 9th grade: Victor Anderson, Ruth Grundel and Bessie Saunders.

A group of young folks patronized the tennis courts Sunday afternoon.

No Place To Land

The flying cameraman gets a good picture at Manilla, Ark., where the strength and fury of the flood waters is illustrated by the pile of timbers strewn along the bank of a wooden highway. Water-covered highways and railroads have isolated the community. Part of a house can be seen floating near the timbers piled up near the wooden highway. For mile after mile the NEA cameraman flew over such scenes as this, risking his life since there was no place to land the plane in event of a breakdown.

DAUGHTERS of MIDAS

by Anne Austin © 1927 by NEA Service Inc

THIS HAS HAPPENED

CLAY CURTIS voluntarily disinherits himself and gives up a life of ease and luxury to follow the example of his father, T. Q. CURTIS, a self-made man whom he admires tremendously. Clay has been an ardent student of music all his life and his ambition is to become a great composer. When he leaves home, he takes with him only hand luggage and music.

When Old T. Q., as Mr. Curtis is known in the store, learns that his son is in the home of one of his employes, he sends for Billy and quizzes her. Billy resents in spirited language Old T. Q.'s insinuation that there is an affair between her and his son. She believes the scene will culminate in her dismissal from the store, but the old man kindly assures her that it has no bearing on her position.

She later learns that a meeting has been called for all the women of the store. Billy is sorely disappointed at this announcement. She is aquiver with eagerness to get home to her violin, for she has promised Clay she would play one of his songs with him that night.

In the store auditorium, Old T. Q. tells the girls he wants them to answer a questionnaire headed, "Why I Work in the Curtis Store." He names a list of prizes for the best answer. Many of the girls scorn the questionnaire, but Billy and three of her friends, Nyda Lomax, Winnie Shelton, and Leila Sampson, resolved to answer the questions. When Billy gets home and shows the questionnaire to Clay, Clay strangely recalls words he had spoken to his father just before he left: "You ought to have a daughter, Dad." Billy, too, wonders what Old T. Q. is up to.

Billy is disgusted when she hears two girls in the store discussing the answers to their questionnaires. NYDA LOMAX lies to gain the old man's favor, saying her ambition is to become a kindergarten teacher, when everyone knows she hates children, WINNIE SHELTON says she wants to take a business course in order to become private secretary to a "big business man like Mr. Curtis." Billy's own ambition is to be a great concert violinist. Music is the great bond between her and Clay Curtis.

When Clay Curtis learns that STANLEY POWERS, assistant credit manager of the store, who has been rushing Billy, is invited to the Wells home for supper the night of the big celebration, he announces he will not be present. Billy is in a sulky humor when she admits Powers that evening.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER 9

"Why aren't you in 'The Pageant of Progress?'" Stanley Powers said to Billy, sitting small and demure beside him. "If you were up there on the stage now, we'd be treated to a sight of the six prettiest girls in the store."

"I couldn't take the time off for rehearsals," Billy answered in a whisper. "Besides, I'm playing the violin later, you know. Sh-h! They're going to recite verses."

Six girls in flowing white draperies, had come dancing upon the stage, Winnie Shelton leading, holding between her hands a small placard bearing the numerals "1895—1900." Pearle Hadley, just a little taller, and with the light playing tricks with her flaming mop of red hair, carried a slightly larger placard with the numerals, "1901—1906." Behind her came Lottie Shumate, a little taller than Pearle, with her placard testifying to the existence of the Curtis Store during the years of 1907 to 1912. Sadie Meyers, whose dark, Oriental head was carried proudly on a long, slender neck, displayed her placard, "1913—1918;" behind her, swaying like a long, slender reed, came Susie Howard, of the misses' dress department, with placard proof that the Curtis store had weathered the post-war depression—1919-1924. Bringing up the rear, and dancing with slow, undulating grace, came Nyda Lomax, tallest and most barbarically beautiful of them all, holding aloft the largest of the placards, bearing the giant numerals, 1925.

When the six girls had delivered their rhyming praise to the Curtis Store and to its founder and owner, T. Q. Curtis, each one hanging her placard upon hooks caught in a long cord that hung from a veiled picture suspened high on the back wall of the stage, the audience burst into spontaneous applause as the placards were seen to form an inverted pyramid, testifying to the wonderful growth of the Curtis Store.

"They're going to unveil the portrait," Billy whispered.

The six girls divided into two groups of three, and took their places on each side of the portrait. Then, with the Curtis band playing softly, the girl's voices rising in a badly trained but rousing chorus of "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow!" six pairs of hands seized cords dangling from the veiled portrait and slowly the velvet curtains parted, revealing a life-size portrait in oils of T. Q. Curtis. It was a fairly bad portrait, but the applause that filled the big room like thunder was a sincere tribute to the man whom all had cause to respect, and more than a few to love.

T. Q. Curtis rose from his seat on the front row and advanced to the stage.

"Seeing the years stacked up under me like that—" and he shot a quizzical glance at the portrait which formed the top of the inverted pyramid—"makes me realize that I'm getting to be an old man. Thirty years of running a dry goods store! To most of you young people, that seems like a lifetime, and I don't know but what you're right. There's nothing much that's new can happen to a man after he's fifty-three, but death—or failure in business. That picture there makes me think death is a long way off, for the artist has kindly left out all my wrinkles; in fact, if I don't watch out, I'll be thinking I look as young as that, and do something foolish."

Billy caught her breath sharply. Staring at girls—pretty girls—the dangerous age; hadn't she read enough about it? She'd have to warn Clay—

"And as for failure in business, long as a man's got a bunch of fellow-workers like you, I reckon there isn't much to worry about. I'm not any good at speeches, and you people know it. But I thank you all from the bottom of my heart. But where—" he peered with that wry grin of his at the portrait—"did that oil-painting artist get the notion that I ever wore a red necktie?"

He clumped off the stage, bowing his head a trifle.

"Old boy just ate it up, didn't he?" Stanley Powers asked under cover of the applause which he was helping to create. "They all fall for the good old applesauce, don't they?"

"It isn't applesauce," Billy blazed out at him fiercely. "There may be a few scoffers who don't appreciate a really noble man when they work for one, day in and day out, and draw down a fat salary check for it, but most of us know that we've got it pretty soft here. I don't blame him for liking it. He's human, isn't he?"

"Ouch!" Stanley Powers ducked his head. "Didn't know you were so stuck on the old boy. As a father-in-law, I don't suppose he'd be so bad."

"If you say another word like that to me, I'll go home right now—alone," Billy snapped, as she moved as far away from him as the narrowness of her seat would permit.

She heard hardly a word of the humorous one-act play that Charles Brenner, the advertising manager, had written, a really clever take-off on the store's class in salesmanship. She was relieved when Stanley Powers rose, with self-conscious smiles at those whom he was disturbing, and pushed his way to an exit, to appear a little later upon the stage with his cornet.

How silly he looked, Billy thought resentfully, puffing his cheeks out like that. It was a wonder his eyes didn't pop out of his head. He kept standing there, bowing like a fat little colonel, asking for more, and retreating at last with a comical look of surprise when he was not clapped into an encore.

The program dragged on, stuffed with monologues, a Charleston contest, a singing and dancing act, a speech by Hoskins, the general manager, and another by Miss Simmons, who talked fearful platitudes about a "bigger and better" store and co-operation.

Billy heard Miss Simmons' speech from back-stage, standing in the wings, nervously smoothing the crisp orchid taffeta of the little frock she had thought so deliciously pretty and which now, suddenly, seemed tawdry and cheap and foolishly juvenile. She wouldn't play an encore, no matter how much they wanted her to. She wouldn't give that conceited, fat little pup of a Stanley Powers a chance to rub it in that she too liked "applesauce."

But when she was at last upon the stage, her violin tucked under her round little chin, she forgot her audience, forgot Stanley Powers and the fact that her mother would be pathetically pleased if she married him—forgot T. Q.'s strange, erratic behavior.

She played "Humoresque," knowing that it would please by its familarity where a piece of her own choice would bewilder them. As she played, every nerve in her body responded to the moods of the music—now lilting, now sobbing, now sad, now gay, now exultant.

As soon as she had finished and made her little ducking curtsey, she ran from the stage into the wings, deaf to the insistent applause that was calling her back. Quite unaccountably, she leaned against the wall, her violin dangling from her hand, and wept.

Someone touched her on the arm and she looked up, fumbling for an excuse for her tears, into the eyes of T. Q. Curtis. He took the hand with which she had dashed away tears.

"They want you to play again, my dear, but—I understand, I was going to award the prizes, but they kept calling for you. I'll tell them you ain't going to play any more, but don't run away. You may be interested in the announcement of prize winners." He patted her hand awkwardly, then strode away to take his place upon the stage.

Billy fumbled for her compact, touched up her reddened eyelids, then tiptoed from her hiding place to an empty seat near the stage.

Old T. Q. was making a short, explanatory speech before calling the names of the girls and women who had won prizes in the questionnaire contest. Billy found it impossible to concentrate on what he was saying.

"And because I appreciate the work that everyone of you did on this foolish questionnaire of mine, I want to announce, before I tell you who won the twenty-five prizes, that I have instructed the credit manager to deduct an additional five percent from the February first bill of every woman or girl who took the trouble to answer the questionnaire. Now, I take pleasure in announcing that the following, in the judgment of Miss Simmons, Mr. Hoskins and myself, have merited the prizes in the order named—"

Billy leaned forward.

"Mrs. Blanche Corwin—"

"Oh, that's nice. She needs the money so badly," Billy breathed, as T. Q. paused for the applause which followed the announcement of the first name.

"Miss Susie Howard—"

Thunderous applause, because Susie Howard was one of the most popular girls in the store, engaged to be married to the most popular man—

"Miss Billy Wells—"

Billy cowered in her seat, clutching the arms of her chair with ice-cold hands.

"Miss Nyda Lomax, Miss Winnie Shelton, Mrs. Carrie Worth, Mrs. Alice Paul, Miss Leila Sampson—"

His stern, clipped voice went to and on, but Billy scarcely heard him. How glad she was for Leila, and for herself—herself—she hadn't been fired.

"And now I want to ask the twenty-five winners just named to meet me for a few minutes after the program is finished, and before dancing begins. I'll only detain you a very short time, in the classroom on this floor."

(To Be Continued.)

France had a similar law a few years later, and Genoa and Venice legalized the custom in the fifteenth century.

Burlington Junction

(By J. Howard Thompson)

Francis Farrell, who left a week ago by auto for Loveland, Colo., with his parents to make his home, returned to Burlington Junction, Monday of this week, for the purpose of finishing out the school year here, as there was a different system of grading in Loveland, and he would have lost his year's work in school by staying out there. He will return to Loveland at the close of the school year here.

We had hoped with the coming of Easter, the weather would have become more settled and the ground made ready for farming. But not so. On Monday of this week this community was again drenched with a downpour of rain and the farmers are again delayed for another ten days. Much of the land intended for an oat crop will now have to be planted to a later crop.

The Methodist Church was largely attended at all its services last Sunday. At the morning hour there was the largest Sunday school attendance for many years, and the audience for the morning worship was large. The Holy Communion was administered by the pastor, and five children were christened. At night the audience was so large that it was necessary to open the partition doors to let the overflow find seats in the Epworth League room of the church. The program at night was a musical put on entirely by the local younger set of the church life.

Mrs. Clara Manes was an over-Sunday visitor with friends and relatives in Liberty, Neb. She left home Saturday morning and returned Monday night.

The dog population of Burlington Junction is getting less with each succeeding day. Since the mad dog scare seems to have been in neighboring towns, the city marshal has taken great precaution here and has gotten rid of many of the stray and ownerless dogs of town. He has killed and buried twelve within the past week, and the end is not yet.

Miss Bernice Manes, only daughter of Frank Manes, who has made her home with her grandmother of Blanchard, since the death of her mother some years ago, spent the week-end with her father and brother George, here in town, returning home Monday morning.

There has recently come to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Grace, a pair of twin sons, born at the home of Mrs. Grace's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lawson McIntyre, five miles west of town. Mrs. Clara Yaple of Burlington Junction is the nurse caring for the youngsters. The mother and sons are doing well.

Ray Cornell, the youngest son of Peter Cornell, living in Maryville, was married last Sunday afternoon in Graham to Miss Jessie Hoyt of that community. They immediately came to Burlington Junction, for a few hours visit with Mr. Cornell's people, then went on to Maryville, where they expect to make their home. Mr. Cornell is a baker by trade.

The Rev. J. Howard Thompson has recently organized a Sunday School class of boys and has secured twenty-five members. On last Friday night, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Irvin having a son in the class, opened their home for a class social. There were twenty-five present. Mrs. Mitchell was present and had charge of the program of fun. She burlesqued the radio, and broadcast from station B-U-N-K, and sure enough the station was rightly named. Harry Irvin, with his mandolin, and Charles Mitchell, at the piano, furnished music. At 10 o'clock, Mrs. Harry Irvin, assisted by Mrs. Ran Irvin, her husband's mother, served refreshments.

John Boyer, who suffered a broken right ankle at the ankle joint six months ago, has so far recovered as to get about with the help of a cane and a crutch. He is the office man at the Charles Wagner plumbing station.

A new street crossing is to be put in across the street just north of the Methodist Church in the near future. Albert Bartlett has the job. He contracted to complete the job and furnish all material for $38. The labor will include taking out of the way a large elm tree at the north end of the crossing.

What is known as Mill Creek, coming down from the northwest part of the county, and emptying in the new river just west of town is on a rampage again, due to the excessive rains of the past few days. It is hindering traffic across the river bottoms west of town. It is said the road is under two feet of water, and with the consequent washout here and there make travel with cars dangerous. Mill Creek has been a thorn to the traveling public for a number of years.

Mrs. Gerald Boyer left last Monday for Concordia, Kan., having been called there by the serious illness of her father, S. Hood. He is far past 80 years of age. Mrs. Boyer, with her family, formerly lived on a farm near Concordia. She will be gone ten days or two weeks.

The Mesdames Etta and Clara Anderson will leave this week for their homes near Wray, Colo. They are the daughters of Mrs. Emma Taylor, recently diseased, and have been here several weeks assisting in the care of their mother. They were former residents of this community. Their husbands are brothers.

The first coat of paint has now been put on the exterior of the Methodist Church and the painters are working on the tower. The Hollis Brothers are doing the work. Charles Wagner and his helpers are putting the spouting on the roof.

The Northwest District of the Council for Religious Education of Nodaway County Sunday School work will meet in the afternoon, Sunday May 8 at 2 o'clock in the basement of the Christian Church, with Miss Virginia Carpenter, presiding. This district comprises the towns of Burlington Junction, Clearmont, Elmo, Wilcox, and Quitman, and all Churches situated within the interlying rural communities.

The Service Battery horses here, with four others from Battery C of Maryville, were shipped to Haskell, Okla. this week. They have been succeeded here with motor trucks. Three mechanics will now be employed to keep the motors in repair. The large barn and lots owned by Mrs. A. Monk, where the horses have been kept, have been surrendered. All Army property will now be kept in the Armory building on West Main street.

The pastor of the Methodist Church announces a great program for next Sunday. He will preach, following the Sunday School in the morning, and then at 6:30 in the evening all the young people of the Church will meet for a social time, for a period of forty-five minutes. An organization of a Young People's Society will be effected, and following this a series of seventy-six pictures on Porto Rico will be shown on the screen.

At Mexico, Mo., last Sunday, a child of two years of age, the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Cole, was baptized by the pastor of the First Methodist Church with water, taken from the Jordan River, in Palestine, by Mrs. Nannie Tidd, of Hutchinson, Kan., prepared by Catholic Nuns in the Holy Land, and administered from a baptismal font of a handcarved Egyptian design, made of Damascus brass, bought by Mrs. Tidd in Cairo, Egypt. This is another great evidence that denominational lines in religious circles are fast disappearing.

The Rev. W. R. Enyeart, a retired minister of the Missouri Conference of the Methodist Church, recently celebrated his fiftieth anniversary of entering the ministry. He was a former Nodaway Countian, having served the Church in Burlington Junction, many years ago. He has been on the retired list now for ten years and, he with his wife, are comfortably housed in a home of their own in Carrollton, Mo.

Irving Hollis was in Elmo last Monday looking after some business matters. He is one of the leading painters and decorators of the town and was in the neighboring village for the purpose of landing a big job.

Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, April 20.—Wheat prices were affected by better weather over the grain belt and by lower Liverpool cables and the tone was weak. The cash market was unchanged.

Corn held better than wheat and there was but moderate pressure. The cash market was unchanged.

Oats were steadier than other grains, with prices about even with the previous close. The cash demand was fair.

Provisions were firmer, with moderate buying by cash houses.
